

FARMING

Early humans were hunter-gatherers, before they started herding livestock. It was only when people started growing crops that they settled down and built farms.

Farming is an important part of the Welsh economy today, and it's not just the farmers hard at work. But . . . the farmer's dog is missing!

Can you help herd the sheep through the maze and into the pen?

